Daniele Sigalot

Daniele Sigalot was born in Rome, in 1976. He started his creative career in the advertising field, working for leading agencies in Italy, Spain and the UK. In 2007 he left the agency Saatchi & Saatchi London to fully dedicate himself to an artistic project he had founded with Fabio La Fauci in 2005 called 'Blue & Joy' - The project's name became a nom de plume of the Sigalot/La Fauci duo, a collaboration which continued until 2013. One year later the duo dissolved their artistic and creative partnership and Daniele Sigalot went on to pursue a solo career, focusing on mixed media installations. At the heart of his working process and conception lies the ambiguity between the physical nature and the perception of the materials he uses. His work is as much illusional as it is ironic. In 2022 he debuted with the solo show "Master of Mistakes" at the National Gallery of Modern and Contemporary Art in Rome. Sigalot ran a workshop in Berlin between 2010 and 2018, which he almost self-ironically called "La Pizzeria". In January 2019, he moved his studio to Naples. As of January 2023, he moved "La Pizzeria" to Rome, where he has since then been living and working. In 2024, Daniele Sigalot curated a dual exhibition of Paolo Angelucci and Lennart Brede, titled The Algorithm Told Me So, at KA32 Gallery in Berlin.
